FORT MCCOY'S FEAST

Food in Plenty for Body and Mind—A Big Crowd and All Had a Good Time

Notwithstanding the threatening weather and the downpour of rain up to 3 o'clock the Fort McCoy barbecue Saturday was a phenomenal success, when the unfavorable atmospheric conditions are considered.

Those who were present from Ocala were County Superintendent W. D. Carr, Rev. L. W. Moore, Mr. John Williams and family and Will Thomas, bookkeeper for the Marion Hardware Company.

Fully 200 people gave the speakers the closest attention.

Hon. C. L. Sistrunk of Ocala, who was detained, but who intended to address the crowd on some of the work of the legislature, and especially with reference to the Burkman educational bill, which Mr. Carr approved and showed how such a bill, in time, will demonstrate its great utility to the young people of the state along educational lines.

Hon. E. L. Wartmann, Marion's other efficient member of the legislature, was called on, and entertained the audience on legislative enactments and the details of the enactment of the "gator law," which forbade the shooting of the same on the Oklawaha river.

He received a numerous signed petition from Eureka and other points along the river, asking that such a bill be passed, and that owing to the promiscuous shooting by tourists on the Hart and Lucas boats as they passed up and down that stream at the "gators," that those stray bullets imperiled the lives of the logmen who were working in the cypress swamps, and because of many narrow escapes from such stray bullets the bill was earnestly demanded. As no counter petition came to Mr. Wartmann the bill was introduced and passed. Since then some of the people in that section, and along the river, have raised a great howl and have been as busy as bees to criticize Mr. W.

for what he did, saying the "gators" were more dangerous to life and limb, hogs, dogs and calves, and in consequence did more harm to the general public than all the stray bullets of the tourists, as no one, up to date, had ever been winged by them. But Mr. Wartmann's statement was so business-like, as all his actions are, that whatever may have been the feeling against him, as the author of the said "gator bill," his explanation dispelled such sentiment, and they who criticized Mr. Wartmann were free to admit that if they had been in his place they would have done just as he did.

Rev. L. W. Moore, pastor of the M. E. church of Ocala, was the next speaker, and devoted his remarks to temperance and the local option question, now agitating the minds of the voters of the county. The speech was a good one and highly commended. The points emphasized in his speech were as follows:

1. The open saloon is the breeder of the greatest amount of crime and disorder. It is worse than any other form of liquor selling, on account of the social mingling and gathering together of the baser passions of men. Sociability at the open saloon is an inspiration to the evil propensities of men. There is no such enticement in the "blind tiger," even if he is allowed to exist.

2. The greatest amount of crime produces the greatest amount of public expense. It follows that the greatest public expense demands the greatest public tax. The saloon, therefore, is, in the sphere of crime and disorder, the cause of the greatest public tax. The thousand dollars paid for the privilege of fostering crime is added to pieces in one or two cases of manslaughter.

3. Prohibition does not mean that we are trying to force men to be moral or temperate. The sayings of "eminent men" on this subject do not touch the point at issue, even if they have been correctly reported. It is certain that some of these "eminent men" have been lied against, because their utterances have been garbled. Prohibition means the removal of the chief place where immoral and intemperate men are encouraged and inspired to become dangerous to society; it means the removal of a public nuisance.

4. As a constant enemy to state and national legislation, the saloon has become a mighty factor. It presides over the political destiny of the country. Before the massive lion statesmen, city and county officers and business men tremble as if the Omnipotent One had placed his hand upon their mouths. To cover before a monopoly, whose only contribution to the country is crime and disorder is humiliating beyond measure. The time for Spartan blood to boil has come.

After reducing the "blind tiger" scarecrow to an absurdity, he took up the business feature of the question and argued that the only business view that would do credit to a business man's judgment was that the loss of the saloon is the gain of every other business.

Rev. H. C. Martin, a zealous temperance man of Fort McCoy, closed the speaking.

A splendid barbecue dinner followed, to which ample justice was done, but if the crowd had been three times its size none would have left the groaning tables hungry.

Among the Citra people were Adam White, J. W. Crosby, and the Reverend York, one of the Methodist church and one of the Baptist church, W. J. Wallace, J. Hobkirk and family, the Sherouses, and others whose names we could not learn. Anthony also sent a good delegation, headed by C. W. Turner, the popular county commissioner from his district, with his family, Tom P. Jones and boys, the Misses Milligan, Mrs. George Pastore and children and lady friend, the Priests and others.

Sparr faced the weather conditions and that sterling citizen, Walter Luffman and family headed the procession, with S. Lovell, Mr. Jordan and family, and Lou Hall with others.

Orange Springs was on hand, while the people of Eureka and Marshville turned out en masse.

For the splendid manner in which all visiting friends were taken care of, thanks are due the providers, and none more so than John Stevens, the intrepid H. C. Martin and others of the committee, with the hope that at the recurring barbecue and picnic of 1906 Old Pluvius will draw his dark and moist frowns and relegate his liquid atmosphere to the rear.

Three beavers, twelve sheep and two hogs were barbecued to the queen's taste. The treasury of the Cemetery Association, for which the occasion arose, was enriched to the amount of $101.55.

MARSHALL FIELD'S MONEY

A Merchant Prince, Who Made His Fortune Fairly, and Does Not Dodge His Taxes

Who is the richest American? It must be Marshall Field, the Chicago merchant, for this year he pays taxes on $40,000,000, of which $10,000,000 is personal property twice those of Andrew Carnegie, and from ten to twenty times those of any of the captains of industry, oil and copper kings, "frenzied financiers" or leaders of the Newport "smart set." If Mr. Field is not actually richer in tangible property than all of these gentlemen, it is evident he is richer in something else, which we leave them to name.

"It is a pleasure to deal with Mr. Field," says one of the Cook county tax officials. "His complaints are few, and when he does utter a complaint there always is a just ground for it. He is not one of those who deem it a matter of good business to escape paying their full share of the taxes. He wants to be fair and square with the people." When Mr. Field dies, which we hope will not be for a generation yet, no better epitaph could be carved upon his tombstone than these words, and his family even now could have no prouder public appreciation.

Mr. Field pays his taxes in Chicago. He does not run off to Newport or make a bargain with a complaisant suburb. He does not subscribe to the maxim of the French monarchy, which is not without a certain popularity in our own time. "The nobles support the state by their arms, the clergy by their prayers, and the poor by their taxes." He has opened a new avenue by which very rich men may diminish their surpluses without any danger of pauperizing communities by lavish or ill-directed philanthropy, and at the same time satisfy the thirst for novelty. They might pay their taxes.—Exchange.

Mr. Field's example could be followed by some of the tax payers of Ocala with credit to themselves and enhanced revenue to the town.

GRAVE TROUBLE FORESEEN

It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead, unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by the Anti-Monopoly Drugstore at 50 cents a bottle.

A TOPSY-TURVY TOWN

The Rich City of Butte, in Which May be Seen "The Infernal Wonders of Mining"

The sightseer has a pleasant experience at Helena, Mont., but to get a glimpse of the infernal wonders of mining he must go to Butte. Perhaps nowhere else can he have such an experience. In a sense, the world is upside down. To begin with, the city takes its water from the eastern side of the continental divide, and thus diverts it from the Atlantic to the Pacific slope. Then a large part of its population is always underground, and its underground alleys and streets, so to call them, are longer than those overground. All its wealth comes from these depths. Nothing green can grow there. In general, nature is turned topsy-turvy.

But it is rich, very rich, interestingly rich. The payrolls of the mines and smelters are $2,000,000 a month, or about $30 for every man, woman and child.

Within a radius of a mile from the court house there are 125 mines in operation, and they are producing more than one-fourth of the copper mined in the world. From beneath the surface of this one thousand acres have already been taken 1,175,000 tons of copper bullion—enough to make an ordinary trolley wire, they tell you, 1,000,000 miles long. If all the shafts, drifts and cross-cuts in the hill around Butte and under it could be put together into one straight tunnel it would reach, so they assure you, from Butte to the Pacific ocean. This wonderful place of mines—nobody who has ever seen it can forget it—is on the path that not many years ago Sittling Hill ranged with his braves.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels, give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be produced at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence, even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by the Postoffice Drugstore.
